What is the ANZ Guaranteed Income Deposit?

The ANZ Guaranteed Income Deposit is a guaranteed investment where you invest a lump sum in return for regular income for a fixed term of between one and five years.

The ANZ Guaranteed Income Deposit is a life insurance policy known as an immediate annuity, a contract between you and ING Life. An immediate annuity typically provides an agreed level of income for a set term, in exchange for an initial investment (known as a 'purchase price') that in the case of the ANZ Guaranteed Income Deposit, is returned in full at the end of that term.

Therefore, when you invest in the ANZ Guaranteed Income Deposit, you have the confidence of knowing in advance how much income you will receive, when you will receive it and for how long.

Once the schedule to the terms and conditions for your ANZ Guaranteed Income Deposit are issued (known as the 'Policy'), the agreed income payments, as well as your purchase price, are fully guaranteed by ING Life.

The ANZ Guaranteed Income Deposit can only be purchased with ordinary (i.e. non-superannuation) monies. This product is not designed for the acceptance of superannuation monies, i.e. Eligible Termination Payments (ETPs).

Who can invest in the ANZ Guaranteed Income Deposit?

The ANZ Guaranteed Income Deposit is designed for any person who may be looking to invest a lump sum in exchange for a regular guaranteed income stream.

What is the minimum amount I need to start?

Minimum amounts
Minimum purchase price	$10,000
Minimum additional investment	Once established, no further investments are possible

Following your initial investment, you cannot make any further investments under the same Policy. Any additional investments can only be made under a new Policy by completing another Application Form.

What are the benefits?

Investment guarantee

Your income payments (as specified in the Policy), as well as your purchase price, are fully guaranteed by ING Life.

Certainty

The ANZ Guaranteed Income Deposit provides you with a guaranteed, fixed income over a fixed term. You can be certain that the level of income you receive will not be affected by interest rates or fluctuations in property and sharemarket values. This will assist you in planning your personal finances as you will know in advance how much income you will receive, when you will receive it and for how long.

Use non-superannuation savings to provide a regular income stream

The ANZ Guaranteed Income Deposit allows you to establish regular income payments from non-superannuation savings, i.e. ordinary monies.

You can choose your income payment frequency

In completing the Application Form, you may choose to receive income from the Policy on a monthly, quarterly, half-yearly or yearly basis. Please note, yearly payments are not available for any Policy with a one year term. Income is paid to you by direct credit to your nominated bank, building society, or credit union account. Please refer to page 8 for further information.

Return of capital

At the end of your Policy's term, the entire purchase price of your Policy is returned to the policy owner by cheque. The returned purchase price is known as the Residual Capital Value (RCV). Please refer to page 8 for further information.

Additional regulatory protection

The assets invested in the ANZ Guaranteed Income Deposit are held in the ING Life No.3 Statutory Fund. The Australian Prudential Regulation Authority (APRA) prudentially regulates life insurance companies, including ING Life. APRA's supervision includes stringent solvency requirements, additional reporting and supervisory functions.

What are the risks?

Structure

A risk associated with an immediate annuity is that you may not appropriately structure your Policy for your personal circumstances. You should speak to an ANZ Financial Planner about developing a strategy to meet your personal needs.

Accessing your capital

The ANZ Guaranteed Income Deposit pays a regular income stream. There is no guaranteed right to convert (commute) that income stream into a lump sum. If we agree to commute, the commutation value would most likely be significantly less than the amount you paid in. This may not be an appropriate investment for investors who require ongoing access to their capital. Please refer to page 10 for further information.

Policy structure is fixed on application

From the time you purchase your Policy and once it has commenced, you will be unable to make changes to the way you have chosen to structure most components, regardless of any changes to your personal circumstances or financial situation. You should speak to your ANZ Financial Planner before commencement to ensure the Policy meets your personal needs.

Inflation

Before commencing your Policy you should consider amongst other factors, the effect that inflation will have on the income payments you receive. Over time the real value of income payments may reduce as a result of inflation.

Family Law Act Provisions

The following information relates to the Family Law Act and its relevance to your Policy.

Part VIII AA of the Family Law Act 1975 (Cth) allows the Court, in relation to the property of a party to a marriage, to make an order or grant an injunction that will be binding on third parties.

The Court's power to make orders altering property interests is intended to cover a range of possible interests that a party to a marriage may have, including ownership of life insurance products.

An order or injunction can be binding on a third party institution such as ING Life, against an interest held on a life insurance product such as the ANZ Guaranteed Income Deposit. Therefore, ING Life will need to comply with a court order or injunction made under Part VIII AA of the Family Law Act in relation to the Policy.

What are the fees and charges?

All the current fees and charges that may apply are included in this section.

All fees and charges are taken into account when calculating the income payments you will receive.

Calculating the income payments is performed by way of a quotation. The quotation will be generated prior to an application being made. By providing us with the estimated purchase price, the quotation will calculate an income payment that we guarantee to pay you in exchange for your purchase price.

The amount of income payment we quote you, while guaranteed, will depend on factors such as:

- › how much money you invest
- › how long and how often you would like to receive income
- › interest rates at the time you purchase the Policy.

The income payment calculation includes an allowance for the expenses that we estimate we will incur during the term of the Policy. Also included in this calculation is an allowance for income that we expect to obtain from offering the Policy. The actual income that we will receive and the actual expenses that we will incur will depend on factors that we do not know with certainty at the time we provide you with the quotation. The main items that are uncertain are:

- › the actual amount of expenses we will incur during the term of the Policy
- › the level of income that we will receive from the underlying assets that we invest in
- › the interest rates at the time you purchase the Policy.

No matter what the actual outcomes of these uncertainties are, we will not deduct any fees or charges from the income payments that are payable from the Policy.

We do however, reserve the right to deduct from your Policy any stamp duty or any new costs, taxes, duties, expenses that we incur as a result of any requirements in relation to any Commonwealth, State or Territory legislation.

Commutation fee

If a commutation is allowed, a commutation fee applies.

As at 30 June 2005, a commutation fee of up to $71.92 will be charged on any commutation. This fee will be indexed annually based on the September Consumer Price Index (CPI). For the current commutation fee amount, call Customer Services on 13 38 63.

Please refer to page 10 for further information in relation to commutation of your investment.

Commission payments

Included in your Policy's charges are commission payments made to ANZ Group. ANZ Group has to meet its expenses from these payments as well as use them as income. These amounts are not an additional charge to you. An allowance for the GST is included in the commission amount stated below.

Commission amount

ANZ Group receives a commission of up to 2.75% of the purchase price.

Other payments

In addition to any commission paid to ANZ Group, we may make payments to ANZ Group to enable them to provide educational or marketing support. These additional payments are not charged to your Policy.

Structuring your Policy

Term

You can select the term of the Policy between one and five full years.

Purchase price

When you invest in the ANZ Guaranteed Income Deposit, the investment used to purchase your Policy is referred to as your purchase price or premium. The ANZ Guaranteed Income Deposit can only be purchased with ordinary (i.e. non-superannuation) monies. This product is not designed for the acceptance of superannuation monies, i.e. Eligible Termination Payments (ETPs). The minimum purchase price is $10,000.

Policy owner

When you invest in the ANZ Guaranteed Income Deposit, you become the policy owner and all benefits will be payable to you. There are no age restrictions.

Joint policy owner

You may nominate another person to be the joint policy owner. Where there are joint policy owners, income payments will be made to both policy owners at the same time, thus creating an income splitting arrangement. You are able to nominate the proportion of income to be split between you and the joint policy owner.

Reversionary policy owner

You may nominate another person to receive the income payments until the end of the Policy should you die. This person is known as a reversionary policy owner, and is discussed in more detail on page 9.

Income payments

We guarantee the amount of income payments specified in your Policy schedule. You can elect to receive income on a monthly, quarterly, half-yearly, or yearly frequency. Please note, yearly payments are not available for one year terms.

The less frequently you elect to receive income, the higher the annual income level will be. Income is paid to you by direct credit to your nominated bank, building society or credit union account.

ING Life makes income payments on the 7th, 14th, 21st and 28th day of each month. The first payment will be made on the payment date closest to your Policy commencement date after the expiry of one payment frequency. Subsequent payments will be made from this date at the payment frequency you have selected. If your payment date falls on a weekend or public holiday, ING Life will bring forward the payment date to a business day just prior to the weekend or public holiday.

The amount of income you receive, while guaranteed, will depend on factors such as how much money you invest, how long and how often you would like to receive income and interest rates at the time you purchase the Policy.

We reserve the right to vary income payments where necessary to conform with any legislative and regulatory requirements. Please refer to 'What are the fees and charges?' section on pages 6 and 7.

Residual Capital Value (RCV)

At the end of your Policy term, the entire purchase price is returned to the policy owner(s). This is called the Residual Capital Value (RCV).

If a reversionary policy owner is nominated, the RCV will be paid to the reversionary policy owner on your death, at the end of the Policy term. Please refer to page 9 for further information.

What happens in the event of your death?

What happens to your Policy in the event of your death will depend on the ownership structure of the Policy. The information below explains the possible outcomes based on three ownership situations.

One policy owner

On the death of the policy owner, the Policy reverts to the estate of the deceased policy owner and payments will continue to the estate for the remainder of the Policy term.

The RCV will be paid to the estate of the deceased policy owner at the end of the Policy term.

Joint policy owners

On the death of a joint policy owner, the ownership of the Policy passes to the surviving policy owner. The surviving policy owner then becomes the sole owner of the Policy and will receive the income payments to the end of the Policy term.

On the death of the surviving policy owner, the remaining income payments will be paid to the estate of the last surviving policy owner.

The RCV will be paid to the surviving policy owner at the end of the Policy term or to the surviving policy owner's estate, on the death of the surviving policy owner.

One owner with a reversionary policy owner

On the death of the policy owner, ownership of the Policy transfers to the reversionary policy owner. The reversionary policy owner then becomes the owner of the Policy and will receive the remaining income payments and the RCV.

If the reversionary policy owner dies before the policy owner, income payments will continue to be made to the policy owner until their death upon which the remaining income payments and the RCV will be paid to the policy owner's estate.

Access to your benefit

Commutation of your Policy

The ANZ Guaranteed Income Deposit pays a guaranteed income stream for a fixed term. There is no guaranteed right to convert (commute) that income stream into a lump sum.

Commutation is the withdrawal or partial withdrawal of your investment prior to the end of the Policy term and involves the conversion of your future income stream back to a lump sum.

ING Life does not guarantee the basis upon which commutations may be offered. Please be aware that if you commute part or all of your Policy, the total amount you receive (including payments already received) could be less than your original purchase price. You should seek financial advice from an ANZ Financial Planner before making any decision to commute your Policy.

The commutation value will be the net present value of future Policy and RCV payments. The commutation value will vary from your original purchase price due to income payments already made, any changes in market interest rates, profit margins, costs associated with the issue and maintenance of your Policy and a commutation fee. A commutation fee applies to any commutation. For further information about the commutation fee, refer to the 'Fees and charges' section on page 7.

The commutation calculation is in accordance with the actuarial standards as contained in the Life Insurance Act 1995 (Cth).

Case studies

The purpose of the following case studies is to illustrate, by way of example, how payments can be structured under the ANZ Guaranteed Income Deposit.

Peter, age 41

Peter has recently inherited a large sum of money from a relative's estate. Volatile investment markets mean that Peter is not comfortable with the possibility that his inherited amount may drop in value over the short to medium term.

In consultation with his ANZ Financial Planner, Peter decides to invest the inherited amount into a two year ANZ Guaranteed Income Deposit. This will provide him with guaranteed income payments as well as the full return of his Purchase Price at the end of the Policy term.

Peter and his ANZ Financial Planner can then discuss whether the returned Purchase Price should be directed to other investment opportunities. Or, Peter may enjoy the peace of mind knowing that his income payments and return of Purchase Price is guaranteed, so he may decide to purchase another Policy.

Garry, age 41 and Julie, age 40

Garry and Julie live in the country and own a small business where they both work full-time. They have three teenage children and their eldest daughter, Elizabeth, has just been accepted into full-time university studies in the city.

Although Elizabeth is planning to get a part-time job once she settles in the city, Garry and Julie also want to provide her with additional income for her living expenses.

In consultation with their ANZ Financial Planner, Garry and Julie have decided to invest some money from their savings account into an ANZ Guaranteed Income Deposit, in Elizabeth's name. This will provide Elizabeth with income payments made to her nominated financial institution account at the frequency she chooses (monthly, quarterly, half-yearly or where possible yearly), whilst she attends university. The income payments are fully guaranteed for the term of the Policy which will give Garry and Julie peace of mind as they will know in advance how much income Elizabeth will receive.

How is the ANZ Guaranteed Income Deposit invested?

Statutory Fund information

The ANZ Guaranteed Income Deposit Fund was formed within ANZ Life on 9 December 1998 and following the transfer of ANZ Life to ING Life, now forms part of ING Life's No. 3 Statutory Fund. As at 31 March 2005, the market value of the assets in the ANZ Guaranteed Income Deposit Fund was $64.36 million.

The assets backing the ANZ Guaranteed Income Deposit and other similar policies are held in the ANZ Guaranteed Income Deposit Fund (the Fund) which is a sub-fund of ING Life's No. 3 Statutory Fund.

The investment objective of the Fund is to invest assets so as to provide the best available match of the liability profile. The assets of the Fund are investments in fixed interest (such as Australian fixed interest securities) and cash (such as money market securities and short term defensive assets). ING Life retains the right to vary the investments held at any time.

The asset allocation as at 31 March 2005 was:

Asset class
Cash	4.4%
Fixed interest	95.6%
Total	100%

Non-participation

The Policy does not participate in the profits of ING Life or in any surplus arising from any Statutory Fund of ING Life. (i.e. the Policy does not receive bonuses). Therefore, you will not be entitled to participate in the distribution of any profits or surplus arising from any ING Life Statutory Fund.

Investment standards

We do not generally take into account labour standards, social, environmental or ethical considerations when making investment decisions for the funds underlying this product.

However, where such issues may materially impact financially on a company in which we hold an investment, we may divest ourselves of that investment. For this reason, these factors are implicitly taken into account when making investment decisions.

What else do I need to know?

Taxation and other information

The following provides general information on the possible taxation consequences of various events associated with the ANZ Guaranteed Income Deposit. However, as individual circumstances differ, you should seek professional advice on your own taxation position.

The taxation considerations are based on our view of the law in force as at the time of preparation of this PDS and its interpretation by the courts and the Commissioner of Taxation. The law may change and affect the taxation considerations for you.

Tax on income payments

For tax purposes, any income payments that you receive will form part of your assessable income. At the end of each financial year, we will send you a PAYG Payment Summary showing the income you need to include in your tax return and the tax that has been withheld by us under the PAYG requirements.

Tax on initial investments

There is no income tax payable by us when you purchase an ANZ Guaranteed Income Deposit.

Tax on investment earnings

No tax is paid by us on the underlying investments of the ANZ Guaranteed Income Deposit.

Tax on any commutations or return of the Residual Capital Value

No tax is payable by you on any amount withdrawn (or commuted) or on the RCV returned.

Goods and Services Tax (GST)

The ANZ Guaranteed Income Deposit is 'input taxed' for GST purposes. This means that no GST is payable by us on the purchase price received from you.

Social Security

Your investment in the ANZ Guaranteed Income Deposit is assessed as part of the government's social security income and assets test to determine your entitlement to social security benefits. In general, your purchase price is assessed as an asset throughout the term of the Policy. The asset will be treated as a 'financial investment' and be subject to extended deeming provisions under the income test. The methods of assessment for social security purposes change from time to time.

We recommend you consult with your ANZ Financial Planner or a professional tax adviser on the impact of the ANZ Guaranteed Income Deposit on your personal circumstances and to ensure you receive full entitlement to social security.

Tax file number declaration

Question 1 – Your tax file number (TFN)

It is not an offence not to quote your TFN. If you choose not to provide your payer with your TFN or you do not claim an exemption from quoting your TFN, your payer must withhold an amount at the rate of 48.5 per cent (the highest marginal rate plus Medicare levy) from any payment made to you.

If you have never had a TFN, ring 13 2863. You will be advised to complete a Tax file number application/enquiry for an individual. Your TFN is usually on any papers sent to you from the ATO such as last year's income tax notice of assessment.

If you can not locate your TFN or are not sure you have a TFN, ring 13 2863. You will be asked for information about your identity and if you have a TFN, your TFN will be mailed to your current postal address.

Privacy provisions prevent us from giving you your TFN over the telephone.

If you have lodged a Tax file number application/enquiry for an individual or made a telephone or counter enquiry to obtain your TFN, print X in the appropriate box at question 1. Your payer will withhold an amount at the rate applicable to a TFN having been quoted. If the payer does not have your TFN after 28 days, your payer must withhold 48.5 per cent from future payments.

You are exempt from quoting your TFN if:

- you receive certain Centrelink pensions, benefits or allowances or a service pension from the Department of Veterans' Affairs (you are not exempt from quoting your TFN if you receive Newstart, sickness allowance, special benefit or partner allowance)
- you are under 18 and earn below the $6000 tax-free threshold. The Commissioner of Taxation has varied the PAYG withholding rate for you to nil even if you have not quoted your TFN to your payer.

Print X in the appropriate box in question 1 to claim your exemption.

Question 2 – TFN authorisation

You can authorise your payer to provide your TFN to the trustee of your superannuation fund. You are not required to do so.

Giving your TFN to your superannuation fund will make it much easier in future to trace different superannuation amounts in your name so that you get the maximum benefit when you retire. It can also help in calculating a lower tax liability on an eligible termination payment.

Your superannuation fund needs your TFN when reporting for the superannuation contributions tax (surcharge). Without your TFN your superannuation contributions may be taxed at the full rate of 15 per cent.

Questions 3, 4, 5 & 6 – Payee identification

See declaration.

Question 7 – Basis of payment

If you are in doubt as to which category you fall under, check with your payer. If you have answered 'Superannuation pension or annuity' as your basis of payment, please ensure you complete question 13 on the declaration.

Question 8 – Australian resident (for tax purposes)

If you need help in deciding whether or not you are an Australian resident for tax purposes, ring 13 2861.

If you are not an Australian resident for tax purposes, you must answer NO to questions 9 and 11 (unless you are entitled to a zone tax offset).

Question 9 – Tax-free threshold

The tax-free threshold is available to all Australian residents (for tax purposes) and means that the first $6000 of yearly income is not subject to tax.

It is against the law to claim the tax-free threshold from more than one payer at the same time.

If you are currently claiming the tax-free threshold with another payer, you must advise that payer that you no longer wish to claim the tax-free threshold by completing a Withholding declaration.

If your income comes from multiple sources and you consider that claiming the tax-free threshold with only one payer could result in an inappropriate rate of withholding, under certain circumstances you may be entitled to apply for a variation to the prescribed rate. For further information ring 1300 360 221.

Question 10 – Family tax benefit (FTB) or Senior Australians tax offset

Generally, you can claim FTB if you are an Australian resident (for social security purposes) who cares for an eligible child and your family's adjusted taxable income is below $77 234 plus $3139 for each child after the first. If family income is more than $77 234, you may still be eligible for a reduced benefit.

You can elect to receive FTB as a direct payment from Centrelink or as an end-of-year lump sum through the tax system.

Answer No at question 10 if you elect to receive FTB as:

- a direct payment from Centrelink or
- a lump sum through the tax system but with no reduction in the rate of tax deducted from your pay during the year in anticipation of the lump sum.

Answer Yes at question 10 if you elect to receive a lump sum through the tax system and a reduction in the rate of tax deducted from your pay during the year in anticipation of the lump sum.

It is against the law to claim the FTB from more than one payer at same time. Senior Australians tax offset

To qualify for the Senior Australians tax offset, you need to meet a number of criteria, including:

- Age: You must be 65 and over for a male and 61.5 or more for a female at 30 June 2001. You must be 60 or more for males and 56.5 for females at 30 June 2001 if you are a veteran receiving a Department of Veterans' Affairs service pension or if you are a war widow or widower receiving an income support supplement.
- Residency: You received an Australian government pension or similar payment at any time during the income year OR you have qualifying Australian residence—that is, you have been an Australian resident for age pension purposes, which is generally 10 years. If not, you will still be eligible if you have a qualifying residence exemption for age pension purposes—for example, you are a refugee.
- Income: If you were single at any time during the income year and your taxable income was less than $37 840. If you had a spouse, married or de-facto, and you lived together for the whole of the income year and the combined taxable income of you and your spouse, was less than $58 244. If you had a spouse, married or de-facto, but you had to live apart at any time during the income year because of illness or either of you was in a nursing home and the combined taxable income of you and your spouse was less than $70 404.

If you choose to receive the Senior Australians tax offset this way, answer Yes at question 10. You will need to get a Withholding declaration from your payer to confirm your eligibility and calculate your Senior Australian tax offset entitlement.

It is against the law to claim the Senior Australian tax offset from more than one payer at the same time.

Question 11 – Zone, dependent spouse or special tax offsets

You may be entitled to a:

- zone tax offset if you live or work in certain remote or isolated areas of Australia
- dependent (married or de facto) spouse tax offset if your spouse's separate net income is expected to be less than $6030 in 2001-02.
- special tax offset for a dependent invalid relative, dependent parent, housekeeper caring for an invalid spouse or a dependent child-housekeeper.

You can claim these tax offsets as a lump sum in your tax assessment.

If you choose this option, answer No to Question 11.

If you choose to receive the tax offset as a reduced rate of withholding, answer Yes to Question 11. You will need to get a Withholding declaration from your payer to confirm your eligibility and calculate your estimate of tax offset entitlement.

If you are uncertain whether you are eligible for the zone, dependent spouse or special tax offset, ring 13 2861 to confirm your entitlement.

Note: The income threshold stated for dependent spouse tax offset relates to the year ended 30 June 2002.

It is against the law to claim tax offsets from more than one payer at the same time.

Question 12 – Higher Education Contribution Scheme (HECS) and Financial Supplement (FS) debts

If you have an accumulated HECS debt, answer YES to Question 12(a).

If you have an accumulated FS debt, answer YES to Question 12(b).

Your payer will regularly withhold extra amounts if your annual income is likely to exceed the minimum repayment threshold. The extra amounts withheld should cover your anticipated compulsory repayment(s). The minimum repayment threshold for 2001-02 for HECS debts is $23 242 or $441 per week, and for FS debts it is $32 918 or $627 per week.

When your HECS and/or FS debts have been repaid you will need to complete a Withholding declaration to advise your payer that you no longer have a debt. Your payer will then reduce the amounts withheld from your payments.

Question 13 – Deductible amount or superannuation tax offset for annuity or pension

If you have bought an annuity or superannuation pension, you may be entitled to deduct an amount when tax is calculated.

If you have an annuity or superannuation pension, you may be entitled to a tax offset.

Answer yes if you wish to claim any of these entitlements. Your superannuation provider or the organisation which sold you your annuity will work out your entitlement.

Please ensure that you have answered all the questions in Section A and have signed and dated the declaration.

Give the completed declaration to your payer.
