Positivity galore

- An improvement across the majority of the sub-indices lifted headline consumer confidence up by 3.4% last week. This marks eleven consecutive weeks of gains in consumer confidence.
- Building on the previous week's 6.1% gain, 'current financial conditions' rose by 1.6%. 'Future financial conditions' lifted by 3.5%.
- Confidence in economic conditions improved sharply. 'Current economic conditions' rose by 8.2% and 'future economic conditions' gained 4.8%.
- 'Time to buy a major household item' softened marginally by -0.2%. This small fall does come after a rise of 10% in the prior week. The four-week moving average of 'inflation expectations' remained stable at 3.4%.

ANZ-Roy Morgan Consumer Confidence and inflation expectations

Last weekend (14-15 Nov)	Weekly change, %	Four-week average	Monthly average since 1990	Inflation expectations (four-week ma)
106.6	3.4%	102.3	112.6	3.4%

This weekly ANZ-Roy Morgan Australian Consumer Confidence Rating is based on 1,529 interviews conducted online and over the telephone on the weekend. Not seasonally adjusted. Further data history on page 6.

ANZ Head of Australian Economics, David Plank, commented:

This week's 3.4% up-tick in confidence, coming on the back of the previous week's 3.2% rise, is a pretty strong result – especially as it is the 11th gain in a row. The rise comes on the back of gains across the major subindices and takes overall confidence to its highest level since February. The news about the successful vaccine trial no doubt played a major role. The strong result points to a potentially strong Christmas season ahead for retailers. The outbreak of local transmission in South Australia reminds us that we aren't in the clear just yet, but the trend in confidence is very encouraging.
